SEARCH ASSIGNMENTS

National Accounts Manager Houston, Tx

We are seeking a person that understands the difference between sales and account management. This person will work with Fortune 500 companies developing long-term deep relationship. This position is not about making a quick sale. Rather this person will build multiple relationships, at the executive level within these existing key accounts. You will manage up to 10 key national accounts.

Working closely with the regional sales reps you will develop the long-term strategy for the account, identify business opportunities, work to expand business in territories and divisions with little or no presence and work closely to align the company's activities with the strategic goals of the customer.

This position will work on large multi-million and multi-year contracts. So knowledge of large sales and contracts is important. Being in Houston many of the your key national accounts will be oil and energy related industries. Other industries include environmental, hazardous waste and filtration.

If you have experience working with large companies, have knowledge of account management, dealing with very senior level executives, please email your resume to: Brad at bmrhiringsolutions dot com.

Vice President Sales Los Angeles, CA

Our client is seeking a person to lead and build a world class sales organization. As the VP you will work closely with the sales team domestically and internationally to ensure they have the resources they need to close sales.

Our client manufactures highly engineered composite parts for the aerospace industry. Aerospace industry experience is not required as this a leadership role. Your ability to be the face of the company to industry is key.

This person will set strategy for sales growth, integrate acquisitions, work with engineering and marketing on new products, identify new markets and develop the vision to penetrate those markets.

As the VP Sales your role is to ensure the sales team is prepared and ready for the challenge. Your job is not to make sales but to ensure sales are made. You will interface at the most senior levels with customers, you must be able to travel internationally, understand a complex RFP process and think

Senior Project Manager - Construction Los Angeles, CA

Our client is seeking an extraordinary project manager - an individual tired of the traditional project management approach to interacting with clients. We need a candidate who redefines the phrase "customer service". Our client has a 25-year track record of profit, growth, and repeat business by a "who's who list" of significant corporations. They've attained this success by "out-servicing" their competition.

If you love the interaction with clients, solving problems collaboratively, outworking your competition, and being goal-oriented, this Senior Project Manager position might be the next ticket for your career journey. The ideal candidate will have a background in successful project management, be within commuting distance of LAX, and be willing to continually go "above and beyond" the call of duty for your clients. Vice President - Operations San Francisco, CA

Our client is a leading distributor of consumer products. They manufacture all their products overseas. Their customers include both OEM and retail customers. The company is growing, developing new products, and expanding their global reach.

As the person in charge of all internal operations, you'll be responsible for driving operational excellence in the areas of logistics, manufacturing, supply chain, warehouse, MIS, and customer service.

You'll be a hero for reducing stock-outs, taking costs out of the supply chain, improving on-time deliveries, and raising the productivity/efficiency level of the operational team to above-average industry standards.

Our ideal candidate will have a strong background in operational management and have reported directly to a CEO/President in their last role where they held full responsibility for supply chain/distribution/logistics for a company that manufactured products with 3rd party manufacturing overseas. A strong track record of continuous operational improvements and change is required for success in this role. Submit Your Resume Now .

Construction Division President

San Jose, CA

Our client seeks a top-notch construction executive to run their San Jose office. The successful candidate will have had prior experience managing 2-3 project managers, leading a business development/sales effort of $10-$20 million minimum per year, and have a solid track record in year-over-year revenue/profit growth for a specific office/business unit.

Total freedom to build, expand, and lead a business within the construction industry. A great background in either project management or business development is required for this position. In addition to the business executive leadership in a construction/architectural/design-build firm, this person should also have the ability to hire top talent, develop a loyal following of satisfied clients generating a high volume of repeat business, and drive an above-average level of profitability.

We are only interested in exploring the opportunity with candidates who are seeking an equity stake, and already have a proven track record that generates personal earnings of $500K to $1 million. Submit Your Resume Now .

Vice President of Marketing San Francisco, CA

Our client is a start-up that has just received an initial investor round of financing. They are currently in public beta with their social media site/service. Our client is seeking a savvy marketing executive that has experience in Web 2.0 technologies, hosted applications, and viral marketing.

You'll establish the marketing department, web strategy, advertising, branding, and service offering. You'll help our client reach into the top 3 companies within their specific sector of social media within just 6 months. In the process of creating and building the entire marketing function, you'll establish yourself as one of the gurus of web/internet marketing, particularly in the social media space.

If you've got the proven track record of successfully launching and growing web 2.0 businesses, and you're tired of working for pennies on a shoe-string marketing budget, perhaps it's time to consider a well-paid opportunity in an organization with the deep pockets to enable success.
